ATLANTA, GA, and SAN FRANCISCO, CA--(Marketwire - Nov 5, 2012) - Representing a diverse group of caregivers, celebrities, reporters and bloggers, the Top 10 Online Influencers in Alzheimer's Disease list was released today in an effort to provide valuable information and resources to the millions affected by the disease, as well as those caring for them.

"Caring for someone with Alzheimer's can be a physically, emotionally and financially challenging experience, making access to reliable information about various stages of the disease all the more important," said Kevin Soden, MD, MPH, Sharecare editorial advisory board. "Recognizing the most influential and credible individuals in this field during November's Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month serves as a powerful opportunity for us to support not only those diagnosed with the disease but also their loved ones and caregivers."

To further support the Alzheimer's community, Sharecare today announced the addition of the Alzheimer's Foundation of America (AFA) to its network of experts. As a new content collaborator, AFA will address topics about Alzheimer's disease and other dementias, including how to care for a loved one with the disease. According to the AFA, 5.1 million Americans may have Alzheimer's disease and as many as four family members may act as caregivers for each individual with the disease.

To be included in the SharecareNow 10 - Alzheimer's Disease list, individuals must have demonstrated a consistent impact on Alzheimer's-specific conversations online over the past year. Top influencers have an active online presence across multiple interactive channels -- including Twitter, Facebook, video and blogs -- and address a wide range of Alzheimer's topics, including symptoms, treatment and care. Influence is measured and quantified through a proprietary algorithm based on more than 70 individual metrics, including Alzheimer's disease relevance, syndication, presence and reach.
